Blog

A blog is a website for publishing diary-like entries online. Personal blogs are common, but you will also often find thematic blogs, which contain entries organised around a topic.

In the case of a "classic" blog, the entries are usually longer, thoughtful, well-edited and illustrated with images or videos.

As there are no rigid requirements, there are many different types of blogs with different structures and content. The majority of blogs are created using a specific blog engine (blog portal) that provides a framework for the blog and hosts it. Their user interface is usually simple, requiring only a basic level of digital skills.
